Supporting your customers can increase their chances of quitting

There is a 60% greater chance of quitting with combination therapy vs single product NRT treatment.^{13*} A 30-second conversation can have a positive impact on smoking.²⁴ The UK-based National Centre for Smoking Cessation and Training developed the Very Brief Advice (VBA) on Smoking Model for clinicians.²⁴

1. Ask – Establish if your customer is currently smoking²⁴
2. Advise – Advise that the best way to stop smoking is with a combination of support and treatment¹²
3. Act – Offer your customer support and treatment wherever it is locally available²⁴

Your customers want you to discuss smoking cessation. A study of more than 1,000 people who smoke showed that 50% expected their healthcare professional to discuss smoking cessation.²⁵

You can help by:

- Teaching customers how NRT works and how it can improve their chances of quitting
- Helping customers select the right NRT for them
- Ensuring that customers understand how to use the product

Smoking Negatively Impacts Health

Heart disease

The chemicals in tobacco smoke damage the heart and the structure and function of the blood vessels.¹ Smokers are 2 times more likely to have heart disease and twice as likely to have a heart attack when compared with nonsmokers.¹

Cancer

Smoking is responsible for approximately 15% of all cancer cases, making it the largest cause of cancer in the UK.³ It has been linked to cancer of the oral cavity and pharynx, larynx, lungs, oesophagus, pancreas, cervix, kidney, bladder, stomach, bowel and liver, as well as leukemia and ovarian cancer.³

Stroke

Chronic bronchitis

Lung function

Lung function declines naturally as people age. Smoking accelerates this decline.²

Erectile dysfunction (ED)

Smoking has been associated with ED in current and former smokers.⁴

How NRT Works

Many smokers trying to quit experience withdrawal symptoms and cravings that may be hard to overcome with willpower alone. Approximately 70-90% of smokers say that withdrawal symptoms and cravings are the reason they do not quit smoking. Nicotine replacement therapy (NRT) can help relieve physical withdrawal symptoms.⁵

NRT addresses your customers' physical needs using consistent, controlled therapeutic nicotine to wean them down gradually.⁶⁻⁸ It delivers lower levels of nicotine without the 4,000 chemicals found in tobacco smoke.^{9,10}

NRT helps manage withdrawal symptoms, which manifest within the first 1 to 2 days, peak within the first week and gradually dissipate over 3 to 4 weeks.¹¹ Cravings, on the other hand, are often psychologically motivated and can last for months. The use of behavioural programmes in conjunction with NRT can improve success.¹² greater chance of quitting with combination

(e.g. NRT Patch plus lozenge) vs. single format NRT¹³

Benefits of NRT:^{10,14-17}

- Helps reduce symptoms of nicotine withdrawal by gradually lessening nicotine intake

- Efficacy shown in over 100 clinical trials

- Various formats to address quitter's needs

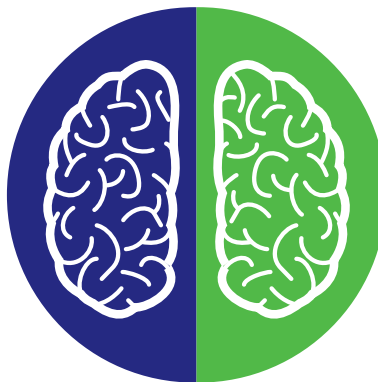

- Can be purchased over the counter (OTC)

The two sides of quitting smoking

Physical withdrawal symptoms

As a result of the body reacting to the absence of nicotine.¹²

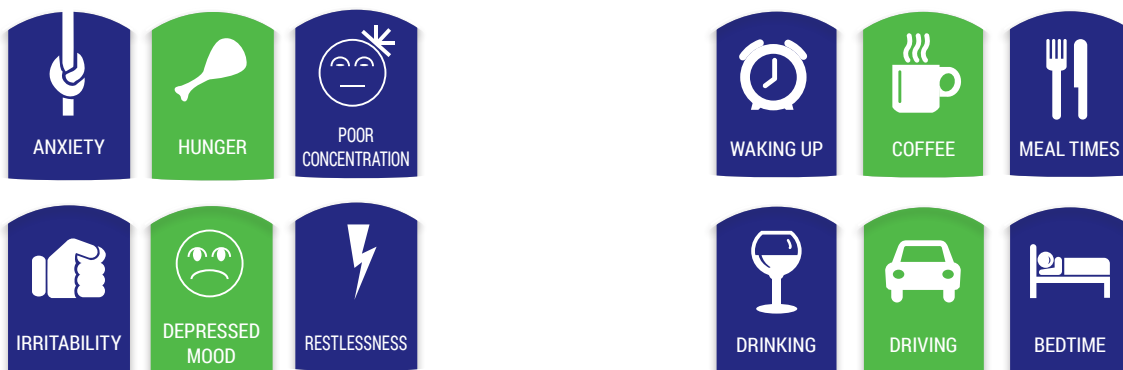

Start within a few hours of quitting, peak about 2-3 days after quitting and may last up to several weeks.^{18,19}

Psychological withdrawal symptoms

As a result of giving up the habitual side of smoking and may be more difficult to overcome than physical.¹²

Psychological cravings arise in situations that trigger the desire for a cigarette, for example:^{20,21}

Advice to share for managing psychological and physical withdrawal symptoms^{23,24}

STRESS – start an exercise programme, practice deep breathing or call a supportive friend.
Learn to meditate or take a stress management class

COFFEE – try tea or flavoured coffee instead, change where you take your coffee break at work

OTHER SMOKERS – explain you are trying to quit, discuss quitting together

Further advice to share for managing psychological withdrawal triggers:

- Try not to go to the pub for the first few weeks and limit alcohol intake
- Manage triggers that arise from being in the car by choosing a different route for regular trips
- Remind yourself that symptoms are temporary
- Keep your hands busy by keeping sugar-free gum or toothpicks handy

Why are these people more at risk from ear problems?

Children

They may have overactive wax producing glands

Older people

They may produce drier wax that is less able to escape the ear naturally

Watersports enthusiasts

Water in the ear canal can cause inflammation and irritation

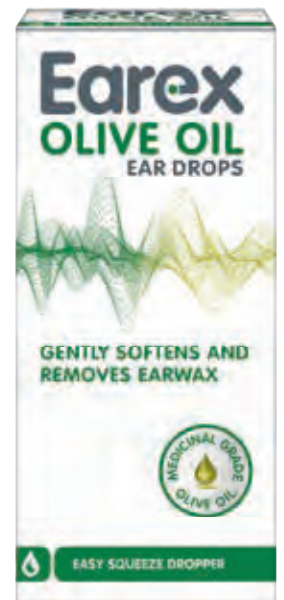

Hearing aid users

Hearing aids can prevent wax leaving the canal causing a build up

Earex provides treatments for common ear problems including excess earwax build-up and hardened earwax.
